W-what the heck!? Toys!?

the old school building warehouse

At last, I see it.

For "outskirts" it's really far away!

Oh, so you have come at last.

but I could never imagine that someone would come to such a place.

I heard the rumors,

Judging by that self-satisfied look, it's a complete misunderstanding!?

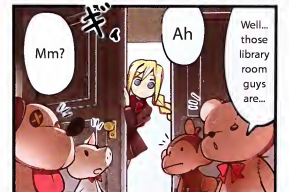

So, as was agreed, I'll be able to get stuff like washing powder, toilet paper, and so on, hm?

Huh?

Human voices? There shouldn't be anyone here though...

These days not a human would approach it, however on occasion it has been used as a junk storage space.

Mm?

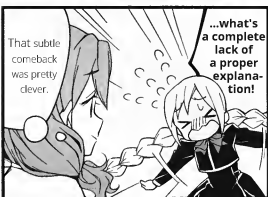

Ah

Well... those library room guys are...

Ooh... We gonna stay until the thing that's about to happen?

Umm... Where do I put this stuff...

Himeri's body was weak since she was a child, she was always hospitalized,

...and go!? What!?

Every day she was alone and lonely,

To tell the truth, I've been locked up as a bad person.

Right!

And then, I was enlightened! With a secret ability!

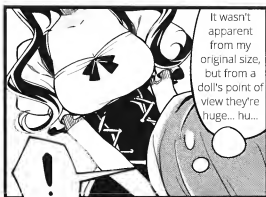

Ah, but I'm like a captured princess here, so I don't really mind this situation.

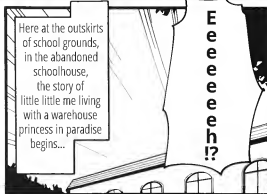

This isn't even 100, this is...

Hey folks, p106 here.

You've just read the first chapter of a little known manga called Haikō Dolls, or, in English, "Dolls of the abandoned schoolhouse". It is serialized since 2014 in Manga Time Kirara MAX magazine, and the first volume came out in June 2015. It was titled Rakuen Feiku (A fake paradise) for most of its existence so all the references to paradise in this chapter are actually allusions to the former title.

Anyway, I think this series has a pretty interesting premise, so I wanted to try translating it to introduce this manga to more people. Please comment if you want me to continue releasing it.

Also consider buying this manga to support the author, like I said it's little known even in Japan, and it's the author's first original series, so every sale matters! You can purchase the first volume on CDJapan.
